Abstract

A detector for determining which interface protocol is in use by a serialiser/desenaliser, and comprising detecting channels composed of clocked delays and bit comparators for detecting the presence of idle signals coded according to either ten-bit or five-bit protocols using either one or two clocks

10